The Leicester Building Society now promises you 9.25% (13.21% gross)*

Does yours promise as much?

Last year we introduced the Leicestercard, giving our share account investors a unique advantage.

A few months ago we introduced a unique link with National Girobank, which lets our investors use their Leicestercard share accounts in any of 20,000 post offices.

Today, we're announcing our best offer yet for higher rate investors.

The new Leicestercard Bond.

1.8% extra for the next three years.

Unlike most building societies, which only offer their higher rate schemes for two years, ours is for three.

For all that time, you can be sure of earning 1.8% more than our ordinary share account rate.

The way interest rates are looking now, that's a very generous promise indeed.

We offer monthly income, when others don't.

We know that many investors who'd like to take advantage of high interest schemes, need to receive their interest as monthly income.

Yet most building societies don't allow it. The Leicestercard Bond does.

We'll be happy to pay you your interest every month as long as your Bond is opened with at least £1,000.

The interest you will earn is currently 9.05% (12.92% gross to a basic rate taxpayer), a full 1.8% more than our ordinary share account rate.

Only £500 minimum - not £1,000.

At such a high rate of interest, you'll probably want to put as much as you possibly can into a Leicestercard Bond.

But if you're a smaller investor, don't despair.

Our minimum requirement is only £500. Many of the other leading societies ask for as much as £1,000.

Extra interest bonus.

If you don't opt for the monthly (or six monthly) income facility, there's a special bonus for you.

We compound the interest we pay you twice a year so that it's worth even more - currently 9.25%.

Again, that's an offer you'll find hard to match from any other building society.

No-one else offers you the Leicestercard benefits.

In order to take advantage of our offer, you'll need to have at least £100 in a Leicestercard Share Account.

(You can open it while you're filling in the application form on this advertisement.)

As well as earning you the full share account rate of interest (currently 7.25%), you can also have a Leicestercard and all of its benefits.

They include discounts on a wide range of goods and services offered by over 5,000 retailers throughout the country and commission-free travellers' cheques.

And the opportunity to use any one of 20,000 post offices to deposit or withdraw from your account. In some areas, you can also use your Leicestercard in our self service tills.

You can even change your mind.

Naturally, such a higher rate scheme means you can't expect the instant withdrawal of a share account.

Even so, after the first six months have passed, you can give us six months' notice of closure at any stage.

If you decide to close your Leicestercard Bond within the first two years, we'll still pay you an extra 0.5% over the share account rate.

And if you close it during the third year, we increase this to an extra 0.75%.

So even if your situation changes and you have to ask for your money back early, you'll still receive a useful interest bonus.

Apply today before we're over-subscribed.

At the moment, there's nothing available from other building societies which offers all the features of the Leicestercard Bond.

Once we've received sufficient investment in this Bond, we reserve the right to withdraw the offer. So you'd be wise to send us the application form and cheque today.

But if you want more details, call into your nearest Leicester Building Society branch or tick the appropriate box on the application form.

You can invest up to £30,000 (or £60,000 for joint investors) in the Leicester Building Society.

*9.25% = 13.21% gross to a basic rate taxpayer, when half-yearly interest is compounded.

Step by step to alternative medicine

From Professor D.J. Weatherall, FRS Sir, Your leader (August 10) and recent articles on alternative forms of medical treatment present a disturbing and not entirely accurate picture of modern scientific medicine. You argue that the medical profession disregards the personal factor in disease and is unwilling to even consider the possibility that unconventional forms of therapy may have a role to play in clinical practice.

Threat to Sutton Hoo burial site

From Mr Nigel A. Kerr Sir, A year ago you published a report of the proposed excavation of the Anglo-Saxon royal burial site at Sutton Hoo, Suffolk. Since then work has begun on surveys in advance of excavation and digging is scheduled to start in due course.

Hardek's 'surrender'

From Mr Marek Garzdecki Sir, With reference to your report (August 24) on the "surrender" of Mr Wladyslaw Hardek to the police, I should like to make some important points.

View of Chad

From Mr Michael Brothwood Sir, Your leading article, "Eating people is wrong" (August 16) which, closer inspection reveals, deals with the subject of Chad, follows upon two earlier leading articles on that subject headed respectively "French headache in Chad" (July 11) and "Power abhors a vacuum" (August 5).

'Ham and High'

From the Editor of the Hampstead & Highgate Express Sir, I must protest insistently at Beryl Downing's derivation of "Ham and High" in your columns on Saturday, August 20. While it would be comforting to think it went back a thousand years, it has nothing whatsoever to do with either homestead or high gate.

Missing the point

From Mr D.J. Ingham Sir, I share with Mr Robinson (August 23) an interest in signs and notices which are public displays of illiteracy.

Enigma codebreaking

From Mr James Rusbridger Sir, Mr Eric Huggins is wrong who he states in his article ("The key to keeping secrets secret", August 16) that Bletchley Park "regularly broke each new German (Enigma) key within 24 hours".

Religion and ratings

From the Reverend Dr Colin Morris Sir, Your leader (August 18) raises a centrally important issue affecting not just religious broadcasting policy but general Christian strategy.

Court-martial cases

From Mr T. A. Ende Sir, With reference to your feature, "The men who died at dawn" (August 20), I am at a loss to understand why the authorities should have withheld from public scrutiny court-martial proceedings of the First or even the Second World War.

Latvian nationalism

From Mr and Mrs Peteris Termans Sir, It is striking that Mr Dubrovsky, in his letter on August 20, entirely evades answering the charges made by Mr Bernard Levin (August 8) on the mass deportation of citizens from the Baltic states.

Of a different feather

From the Minister of Foreign Affairs for Sierra Leone Sir, I was able, in the course of my last transit through London in early August, to secure a copy of The Second Cuckoo, which I understand was only made available on the bookshelves a week or so before.

with the Polish authorities' methods in that respect. In addition, his statement on television was worded in such a way that we believe it was not written by him. Again, it is likely that it was drawn up by representatives of the authorities. We should also point out that Mr Hardek's appearance on television does not make the occasion genuine, since it is well known that film has been falsified before - not least on the occasion when Lech Walesa was supposed to have been talking to General Jaruzelski.

Latvia and Lithuania are a constant source of embarrassment to Moscow as their annexation is the result of collusion between the Soviets and Nazi Germany, culminating in the signing of the Molotov-Ribbentrop pact.

Refugees' contribution From Professor Walter Laqueur Sir, Mr Bernard Denvir (August 25) rightly stresses the need to assess the cultural contribution made by refugees.

Football opens with the promise of better things on the pitch and familiar threats off it

Goals and Nicholas bring sweetness to a day soured by hooliganism

By Stuart Jones, Football Correspondent

Comfort and dismay greeted the new football season... Goals were up, crowds were down... The attendance at Hillsbury was close to 40,000...

relieved to climb out of the bright glare of publicity on to a stage where he feels more comfortable. The spotlight was still aimed primarily at him.

Woodcock, too, refused to stay hidden in the chorus line. He headed Arsenal into the lead midway through the first half when Nicholas's run took out three defenders and Davis as left free at the byline.

Rix, Arsenal's new captain, was also prominent, not least for hitting a post with long-distance drives. So was Jennings for a couple of typically neat saves from Moss and Steo near the end.

David Platt, Luton's manager, remarked that the crowd had "really come to see the opposition," a joke tinged with truth. It was only after deciding to tighten up their defence that they lost their way last season.

The most unattractive incident occurred several miles away from a stadium. Some 236 of Birmingham City's supporters were arrested after causing havoc at Sutton...

One answer for those whose turbanies are growing ruder is to acquire a so-called star, a character, a crowd-puller. The pity is that few exist, the problem for managers is that even fewer are available for transfer and the setback for all but the richest clubs is that fewer still can afford them.

Only three, for instance, made bids for Charlie Nicholas, Scotland's new crown prince. He chose Arsenal above Liverpool and Manchester United, although he was persuaded to leave Wolverhampton Wanderers...

With a theatrical touch, Nicholas's 10 colleagues emerged first from the wings to receive applause that was moderate in comparison to the ovation that marked his entrance. He admitted that he was
